Dr. Squier Exhibits Tobacco Ads at Hardin

Dr. Christopher Squier, associate dean for research and graduate studies, currently has an exhibit of tobacco ads at the Hardin Library. The exhibit, which is on the third floor of Hardin Library near the front entrance, shows ads from 1930 through the 1940s, which use the medical profession to market cigarettes.

Dr. Squier, whose research area includes soft tissue and oral cancer, is currently a member of Iowa’s Commission on Tobacco Use and Control, which promotes tobacco use prevention. In 2001 Dr. Squier received an honorary doctorate by Semmelweis University in Budapest, Hungary, for his collaborations with Semmelweis faculty on tobacco research associated with oral lesions and tobacco control in Hungary. He has also been involved with collaborations or presentations on tobacco use in Brazil, Poland and the

Calling All Dental Musicians

The VA-National Medical Musical Group (MMG) is recruiting new members for its chorus and symphony orchestra. If you are a good singer or play a musical instrument well, you may apply.

MMG’s 2002 fall program includes the fall National Veteran’s Day Concert on November 11 in Louisville, KY in conjunction with the meeting of the Association of Medical Surgeons of the U.S. (AMSUS). Following the November concert MMG will conduct a concert tour of England, Ireland, and Scotland November 12-21. Dentists, physicians, nurses, other personnel, and faculty, both VA and non-VA, and their families and friends, may participate.

For information on concerts and travel as a MMG performer or companion, call Adella Pocavich (202-797-0700; fax 202-797-0771) or write MMG, P.O. Box 7712, Gurnee, IL 60031 (e-mail: vanmmg@hotmail.com). There is also a Web site: http://www.medicalmusical.com.

Study: Music Doesn’t Reduce Anxiety/Pain in Children

Audio distraction was not an effective means of reducing anxiety, pain or uncooperative behavior during pediatric restorative dental procedures, according to researchers at Columbus Children’s Hospital and The Ohio State University.

In an article in the March/April issue of Pediatric Dentistry, dental researchers report that, despite their finding, the young pediatric dental patients had an overwhelmingly positive response to the music and would choose to listen to it at subsequent visits.

The study looked at 45 children at Children’s Hospital Dental Clinic in Columbus, Ohio. The healthy 4– to 6-years olds required restorative dental treatment with local anesthesia on both mandibular quadrants. The sample group was divided into three groups: one group who received upbeat music distraction, another who received relaxing music distraction, and a no-music control group. The researchers say the results of their study are consistent with

And Time Goes By…

While waiting for my first appointment in the reception room of a new dentist, I noticed his certificate, which bore his full name. Suddenly, I remembered that a tall, handsome boy with the same name had been in my high school class some 40 years ago.

Upon seeing him, however, I quickly dismissed any such thought. This balding, gray-haired man with the deeply-lined face was too old to have been MY classmate. After he had examined my teeth, I asked him if he had attended the local high school.

“Yes,” he replied.

“When did you graduate?” I asked.

He answered, “In 1954.”

“Why, you were in my class!” I exclaimed.

He looked at me closely and asked, “What did you teach?”
