In January, the Office of Research and Economic Development launched the Dare to Discover campaign, which promotes UI faculty from all areas of the campus. The stories of these scholars, creators, and researchers are represented in a series of 40+ black and gold banners that can be found in downtown Iowa City, along Park Road, and in the University Capitol Centre (UCC).

The banners were produced by the UI Office of the Vice President for Research and Economic Development (OVPR&ED) to publicize the works of these faculty – researchers, scholars, and creators – including three faculty affiliated with the College of Dentistry: Dr. Nathan Holton, Department of Orthodontics; Dr. Gustavo Avila-Ortiz, Department of Periodontics; and Dr. Aliasger Salem, joint appointment, Colleges of Pharmacy and Dentistry. OVPR&ED worked with the City of Iowa City, the Iowa City Downtown District (ICDD) and Iowa City graphic designer Robyn Hepker to develop the series. Nancy Bird, executive director of the ICDD, said, “We’re pleased UI chose to promote it through the downtown banner system to engage the larger community and the million-plus people who visit Downtown annually.”

The banners will remain in place through February, then many will be displayed inside of the UCC.

All of the UI faculty with banners will be found at https://dare.research.uiowa.edu/ where you can read about their research and the location of their particular banner. See page 2 for additional photos of the banners for the dentistry-related faculty.

When Clara Skott, an Iowa farm wife living in South Dakota during the 1918 influenza pandemic, received a series of injections to stave off the flu, the hypodermic needle was a symbol of modern medical practice. Iowa doctors’ ledger books show “hypo” were a staple of their treatment repertoire. What was in the hypo was not always clear. Clara was given a homegrown influenza vaccine; other patients received barbiturates, vitamins, or placebos. $1.00 for an injection was beyond the reach of many Iowans. This talk explores country doctors’ practices and the range of ways rural Iowans handled health issues in the first half of the 20th century.
