Correction
Audrey Pooch was inadvertently listed as departing in last week’s Transitions column of the DSB Weekly. We regret the error and would like to remember Audrey as a wonderful co-worker and a friend to many.

Skin Cancer Screenings
The UI Health Plans, in partnership with UI Wellness, will sponsor free skin cancer screening provided by faculty and staff from the UIHC Department of Dermatology. The screenings will provide individuals with an opportunity to determine if they are at risk for skin cancer and melanoma, to learn more about skin cancer, melanoma and how to do a self-examination for skin changes, and have a dermatologist examine lesions that are of concern. Screenings will be held May 22, 8th Floor Solarium, UIHC from 7:30 a.m.-4:00 p.m. (Use Elevator F to the 8th floor.)
No appointment is necessary for the screenings. Please encourage interested individuals to attend.

Now Provides Fast Link to Full-Text Articles

The UI Libraries now provides a new service that answers the question “How do I get the article? Is it available on campus electronically or in paper?” In many indexes and databases you will now see a new InfoLink button that allows you to link from an article citation to related content and services available through the library. When you find a record in a database or periodical index, click on the InfoLink button:

- to see if the full text of the article is available online for immediate access
- to check InfoHawk to see if the journal or book is in the library; or
- to get e-mail assistance from a librarian.

Of course, of these three the most exciting one is the ability to link immediately to the full-text article, if it is available online. InfoLink will take the citation information and create a direct link to the full-text article whenever possible. If the full-text is available online, but is not available through a one-click direct link, InfoLink will direct you instead to the table of contents for that issue, or to the journal’s home page.

For a complete list of electronic journals available to the UI community, go to InfoLink. The list includes nearly 7,000 titles and is in alphabetical order. It is hoped that the list will be searchable by August 2002.

InfoLink will continue to grow as InfoLink buttons appear on additional indexes and databases. There will also be additional features, including links to the citation indexes from Web of Science and to Journal Citation Reports. The list of full-text journals available online will also continue to grow, all of which will be included in Info Link.

For more information about InfoLink, go to http://infolink.lib.uiowa.edu:8080/faq.html.
