PROGRAM FACULTY

Sergio Kuttler, B.S., D.D.S., received his DDS in 1978 from the Universidad Tecnologica De Mexico, Mexico City, Mexico. He was in private practice of General and Pediatric Dentistry for a number of years; in 1984, Dr. Kuttler received his Endodontic Certification from the University of Southern California, and practicing exclusively Endodontics. His major areas of scientific research interest include the performance of nickel-titanium endodontic instruments, three dimensional obturation of the root canal space; root canal irrigation and restoring endodontically treated teeth. Dr. Kuttler is a world-renowned endodontist and internationally recognized lecturer. He has presented over 450 national and worldwide courses and lectures in over 35 countries throughout 4 continents. Dr. Kuttler is the author of numerous scientific papers published in peer-review journals and is a contributor author in four endodontic textbooks. Dr. Kuttler is former Chair of the Endodontic Department and presently Professor, Department of Endodontics and Associate Dean for Advanced Education Programs at Nova Southeastern University, College of Dental Medicine in Fort Lauderdale, FL. He practices exclusively Endodontics in the Faculty Practice at the University.

THE PROGRAM and OBJECTIVES

The field of endodontics is still experiencing a virtual explosion of new techniques, instruments and materials. How many of these will stand the test of time is yet to be determined. Many manufacturers’ claims and existing guidelines for selecting a NiTi file system are:

- Based on contemporary authors and lecturers
- Often unsubstantiated
- Anecdotal based on clinical experience without scientific approach (evidence-based)

The limitation of existing guidelines are:

- Do not take recent research into account
- Do not discuss goals or predictable methods of obtaining clean canals and 3D obturation of them
- Emphasize importance of instrument sequence to shape root canals radiographically for obturation

During the simulation hands-on exercise in the afternoon, attendees will:

- Perform root canal treatment more efficiently with fewer files, design enhancements that deliver consistent canal shapes in less time and with fewer instruments;
- Experience energized irrigation protocols with new technologies and techniques for removing bacteria and the smear layer; and
- Experience state of the art, centrally condensed gutta-percha technologies vs. single-cone techniques.

At the completion of this course, participants should be able to:

- Understand the ability of a single file system over multiple files systems in preparing canals without procedural errors;
- Understand the objectives of canal instrumentation and how to achieve these objectives with one single NiTi file system based on research;
- Know the advantages of one single file NiTi system over the others; and
- Know the advantages of core-obturation materials for 3D obturation of the prepared canal space based on the “best evidence possible”.
