DATE: Friday, September 30, 2016; Registration 8:00 – 8:25 a.m., Program 8:30 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.
LOCATION: College of Dentistry, Galagan Auditorium
CE CREDIT: 7 hours relicensure course

REGISTRATION DEADLINE IS SEPTEMBER 16, 2016
THE PROGRAM and OBJECTIVES

Today's periodontal therapy is a combination of traditional treatment to maintain health of natural teeth along with therapy to place and maintain dental implants. As the two disciplines have many commonalities, they also have many differences. This program will highlight the similarities and differences and provide a current and historical approach to achieving and maintaining periodontal and peri-implant health.

At the completion of the program, participants should be able to:

- Have an understanding of the treatment and prevention of periodontal and peri-implant diseases,
- Understand when a tooth must be extracted and when it can be treated and maintained and how to differentiate between both,
- Understand the importance of non-surgical periodontal treatment and how it is correctly used,
- Be able to devise an excellent maintenance program that will assist the patient in achieving and maintaining periodontal and peri-implant health,
- Learn some of the pitfalls of maintaining peri-implant health and how to avoid them when placing and restoring implants, and
- Learn how to properly educate patients to avoid periodontal and peri-implant diseases.

PROGRAM FACULTY

Paul Levi, Jr., DMD, is a practicing periodontist in Burlington, VT. Dr. Levi attended Tufts University School of Dental Medicine from 1962-1966, and after graduation he accepted a general practice residency (internship) in Burlington, VT. He was allocated to the U.S. Navy and served as an officer at Great Lakes Naval Training Center in North Chicago, Illinois for two years, where he was assigned to be the periodontist for the recruits who were being shipped to Vietnam or to sea in submarines, and following two years in the Navy, Dr. Levi moved to the Boston area where he did his postdoctoral periodontal training at Tufts. In 1971, he earned his Certificate in Periodontology and then moved to Burlington, VT, to establish a practice in periodontology.

Dr. Levi has been very active in periodontics locally, nationally, and internationally. Among the many positions that he has held are: Treasurer of the Vermont State Dental Society, Trustee for District I for the American Academy of Periodontology (AAP), President of the AAP Foundation, and an Examiner previously and presently a Director of the American Board of Periodontology. He taught at the University of Vermont School of Dental Hygiene for twenty-seven years and is presently on the faculties of Harvard School of Dental Medicine, Tufts University School of Dental Medicine, Universidad Internacional de Catalunya in Sant Cougat, Barcelona, Spain, and the University of Vermont Hospital, General Practice Residency Program. He is involved with several research projects at Tufts while teaching two days a week, and he and Federico Ausenda just completed, “The Effect on Subgingival Inflammation and Toothbrush Wear Using the Stationary Bristle Brushing Technique”, which won the two highest research awards for 2016 at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. In January of 2016, he and three colleagues from Tufts published a textbook for general dentists, periodontists and periodontal residents, dental students, dental hygienists, dental hygiene students and dental assistants entitled, The Non-Surgical Control of Periodontal Diseases: A Comprehensive Handbook.
